ADLIVE.

It fell when the crimson began to shine
In the round of the robin's breast,
That the feet of the maiden, Madeline,
Came not to dance with the rest.

And when the splendor shone in the grass,
And the head of the rose was high,
She sang of love, though the song, alas!
Was only a lonesome cry.

But, ah! when the drifts of gold in the air
Betrayed where the broom was sweet,
She took the comb from her silken hair
And let it fall to her feet.

And in the days when the woods grow green,
And a red haze fringed the skies,
She wound it back, and wound it down
From her poor bewildered eyes.

And by and by, when the snows were white,
And a shadow sat in the land,
She lay on her bed from morn till night,
And turned the ring on her hand.

The midnight moon was blind with storms,
But her heart with dreams was light—
For she cried, He has come! let me go to his arms!

We searched the valley, far and wide,
For the print of a step—but no! [bride,
And we combed her hair like the hair of a
And made her a grave in the snow.

And we took the smile with trust so sweet—
And we took the ring—for a sign, [feet
And the name we graved at her head and
Was FATH—NOT Madeline.

OLLA PODRIDA.

—Fifty-nine newspapers in towns and cities on the Pacific coast have perished during the present year.

—When a man's business is rapidly running down it is time for him to think of winding it up.

—A Cincinnati court of justice has decided that a man who gives intelligence to a newspaper, is as liable in a suit for libel as the journal which publishes the information.

—An old criminal, sentenced by Judge Bedford to five years, naively remarked: "That Judge is a nice little fellow, but I guess he's never been to jail himself, or he wouldn't have tucked it on so hard."

—"Brethren," said a speaker at a late missionary meeting, "I want you to turn your backs upon this Board of Missions, your greenbacks, I mean, and if you presume to speak to them, talk in silver tones."

—A gentleman visiting Glasgow for the first time, and falling in with very wet weather, inquired of a person in the street if it always rained in Glasgow. "Na," was the answer, "it snows sometimes."

—A certain lecturer asserts that woman's sphere is bounded on the north by her husband on the east by her baby, on the south by her mother-in-law, on the west by her maiden aunt.

—A well known English Lord is said to have given the following instructions to his steward: "We are coming down, a large party, in a day or two, to eat strawberries and cream. We shall want plenty of the latter, so don't let any of the cows be milked meanwhile."

—"What brought you to prison, my colored friend?"

"Two constables, sah."

"Yes, but I mean had interperence anything to do with it?"

"Yes, sah, dey was bofe of 'em drunk."

—Mark Twain says: "I have seen slower people than I am—and more deliberate people than I am—and even quicker, and more listless and lazier people than I am. But they were dead."

—A new thing in church music and Sunday school music was exhibited at the Methodist church, in New York, on Christmas Sunday. In the Doctor's remarks he recited the words—

"Ring out the bells for Christmas,
The happy, happy day;
Ring out the bells for Christmas,
The happy, happy day."

and touched a wire with his foot. Hardly had he ceased speaking when the chimes began to ring, and continued until the whole tune had been played, and the deepest silence.

—Seventeen years ago there was not a house nor even a single human being in Leavenworth, Kansas. Now there are 25,000 inhabitants, twenty-seven schools, thirty churches, two theatres, seven public halls, two jails, and hotels, stores, factories, and foundries in abundance.

—Plain people have the advantage over the beautiful of a part of life; that is, when old age comes. Homeliness wears well; it seems to mend with years, or, at least, it has nothing to lose. As a general rule, the most worn and time-touched faces are the faces of once upon a time. There are characteristics which defy the ravages of time, but mere personal beauty is evanescent.

—"Do you know the prisoner, Mr. Jones?"

"Yes, to be sure. What is his character?"

"Didn't know he had any. Does he live near you?"

"So near that he has spent only one day in the jail for drunkenness."

"Did he ever come in collision with you in any matter?"

"Only once, and that was when he was drunk and mistook me for a lamp post. From what you told me, I don't believe him under oath?"

"That depends upon circumstances. If he is a good fellow, I don't think he would."
